Chapter 9

The next morning the family got up and broke camp enough to pull the motor home out and drive into town. As soon as they entered they started looking for the bus station and quickly found it. They stopped, went in and checked the schedule and saw the next bus north was not due for a couple of hours and since it was such a small town, there was no need to be there much before then. They all jumped back into the motor home and drove around looking at the town more and decided it was a nice quiet little community. They didn't see any indication whether or not the town was nude friendly except to see a bunch of little kids out playing in a sprinkler nude. There wasn't any one of the kids that was older than about six or seven, so they gave no real indication as kids that age played nude all the time everywhere.

John stopped at the local Real Estate office to inquire more about the property, since it was a Multiple Listing property. The entire family went inside and talked with one of the agents, Peter Jones. John told him they had decided to buy the property and had signed a three month lease a few days earlier. Peter told him there would be no problem as he could work it out so the lease amount was included in the down payment. John asked about utilities and water and was told there were no utilities closer than two miles away, water would have to be located and a well drilled. He said there had never been a problem finding water on any properties before so he didn't think there would be with this land either. John asked how hard it would be to get power run to them and Peter said it only took money and it could happen. John said that shouldn't be a problem then. They talked about the down payment percentage and all the other particulars, except the actual figures. Peter got to the point of the asking price. John said it sounded like a fair price and was willing to make a full price offer. Peter was stunned as normally buyers wanted to offer about half to begin with. He asked John if he was sure, John asked if there was a problem with him doing it. Peter said no, it was just unusual. John told him to start the paperwork and they could get started as they were anxious to buy it. Peter agreed and asked John if they could come back in about an hour and he would have it ready to review and sign. John said it would be fine and the family left.

Outside they looked at the time and saw that it was time to drop Justin and Judy off at the bus station. The drove there and everybody went in. The bus station was still almost empty and the bus was due to arrive in less then a half hour. John went to the ticket window and purchased the two one-way tickets for the kids and handed them to each of them. About that time the bus pulled in and stopped. The few passengers that were on board got off to stretch their legs and those that smoked, grab a smoke. The driver announced they would only be there for fifteen minutes and for the people not to wander far. A few came inside for snacks from the machines and use the restroom. The passengers were the normal mix of people that ride the bus and nobody stood out as too weird. John reminded the kids that they were to be careful and they could talk to people on the bus but asked them to sit together so nothing happened to them.

Justin, like a normal teen boy, said; “Yea, whatever. I thought maybe I would hook up with one of the other guys and start an orgy on the bus.” He laughed and everybody knew he was actually kidding, as it was so out of character anyway. He told his mom and dad he would take good care of his sister and they could stop worrying. June said it was a parent’s right to worry and she would until they pulled back into the property a few days from then. The bus started boarding, Judy gave her mom and dad a kiss as did Justin, he even kissed his dad on the lips. They boarded and waved to their parents as the bus pulled away. John looked at June and reminded her they were not little kids and they would only be gone a few days. He said it was time to go back to sign the papers.

They returned to the Real Estate office and as they were walking in, they overheard Peter talking on the phone. They heard him say something to the effect of; “Yea, he hoped the new people looking at the property were nude friendly as well.” He looked up and saw John and June walk in, told the party he was talking to good-bye and hung up the phone. John spoke up saying that they didn’t mean to overhear his phone conversation but couldn’t help hear the words nude friendly. Peter started to apologize but June stopped him and said they were nudists so that made them nude friendly. They could see a look of relief on his face as soon as she said it. Peter went on to explain he had been taking with the mayor. The town and the surrounding area were known to attract nudists from all walks of life. John laughed and said the plan they had for property was to build a nudist community and they had hoped there would be no problems with the town if they did. Everybody laughed and shook hands. Peter welcomed them to “God’s Country”. John and June didn’t want to mention the open sexual nature planned, however. June looked at Peter, sizing him up as a sexual partner, and then caught herself thinking she had become just as much of a horny slut as her daughter.

Meanwhile on the bus, Judy and Justin were sitting together talking about nothing when they looked at the young woman sitting across the aisle from them. She looked back and smiled. She looked at Judy and told her how sexy she was and asked her how old she was. Judy told her and asked the lady how old she was, figuring what was good for one was good for the other. The woman said she was 23 and was traveling to Seattle. Judy said they were as well and told Justin to switch seats with her as she wanted to talk to somebody besides a family member. The woman asked if they were siblings and Justin told her they were. She said she thought they might be lovers the way they were acting. Judy looked at Justin and then back at the woman and asked her why she thought that. The woman said she could almost always tell when two people were in love by their body language, eye contact and just little things. She bent down and whispered to them, "It is okay as I sleep with my mom and dad anytime I can." She went on to say her dad was the best lover she had ever had. Judy shoved Justin out of the seat and asked the woman her name. The woman said her name was Amber, like the gem, and sat down beside Judy. The two of them became instant friends and Justin knew she was going to end up at their house tonight. He just hoped he would be included as it seemed as though she and Judy were very attracted to each other. Amber could feel Justin's disappointment and looked at him. She said for him not to worry as he would be included in the party if they had one.

The conversation at the Real Estate office was finally coming to an end. All the paperwork had been signed and John wrote a check for $100,000.00. The asking price for the property was $1.5 million dollars, which in the areas market was right on. John told Peter if he needed any additional money to proceed later to let him know and when it came time for the entire down payment, he would just write an additional check. They all shook hands, John and June walked out the door. They headed for the local café as they had seen it had Wi-Fi internet and John needed to check on a few things since he had just spent so much money.

Judy and Amber had barely stopped talking since they met and it had been about 5 hours. Justin had given up on sitting with Judy the rest of the way and leaned his seat back to go to sleep. He looked over before he shut his eyes and saw the girls holding hands. The girls talked and held hands the entire time until they pulled into Portland for a bus change. The bus stopped and everybody got off. Amber grabbed her bag from the pile and asked Judy where theirs were. Judy said they didn't bring one, except the carry on with snacks, because they were going home to get their Jeep to drive back to Oregon where their parents were at the camp area they left. Amber asked them how long they were going to be in Seattle and Judy said a couple of days and asked her to stay with them if she wanted. Amber looked at Justin, licked her lips, and said she would be thrilled to stay with them. In fact, she said, if it wasn't too much bother maybe they could drive her back to Eugene when they returned as she wanted to head there. Justin told her they would be happy to detour through Eugene rather than heading directly up the Columbia canyon to Hwy 97.

Back in Lakeview, John and June had signed all the papers with the Peter and had gone to the store where they purchased some additional non perishable food stuff as well as some meat and fresh fruit and vegetables. The loaded everything into the motor home started to head out of town when a man walked up and knocked on their door. John answered it and the man told him he was George Jones and was the mayor of the town. He said he had been talking with Peter and had been told about the nudist community they were thinking about. John asked him if he was any relation to Peter as they had the same last name. George said they were cousins and they had married sisters. George asked if they could meet in his office later to discuss the idea. John said they could come over right then if he wanted. George said he would need about two hours as he and Peter had a double lunch date with their wives. It was tradition and he couldn't break it. John said he understood and said they would be able to walk around town to get to know it better and meet some of the townsfolk. George said it would be a great idea and shook John's hand and told them he was looking forward to spending time with them and getting to know them since they decided to become part of the community. George headed off to meet up with Peter and their wives. And John went into the store and told them he was going to leave the motor home in the parking lot for a few hours so they could explore on foot. The store manager told them it was not a problem and told them to take their time and enjoy. He added that Lakeview wasn't very big but there were lots of interesting things to see and they probably would not see all the little things in just a couple of hours. John thanked him and they went about exploring.

(End of Chapter 9, wonder what is up with the mayor and his brother)
