

Epilogue

I mentioned in the last chapter, a few things that would lead you to believe that there is more to the story.

You would be right.

Because of our ever growing situation and need for space, we did have to move. I'll be talking about that in the next book, along with other items I alluded to in the last chapter.

Both Mel and Hailey had daughters a few years after Jessica had Eloise, so the brood was growing. The location of our new abode will be disclosed in the book to come, but suffice it to say that if you are aware of California, I'll say it's probably the most beautiful location in the state, but there's a hook in there so don't get cocky!

During the time between now and then I've learned to fly helicopters and airplanes with instructors' certifications in both.

Between the three of us living here now, and the fourth one we still hope will join us, there is enough money to make Bill Gates wonder if someone is chasing him, and we didn't have to do flaky software to get our dough. Yes, yes, that's a dig, but ask anyone who uses that operating system. It's well deserved.

He earned his money!

I suppose I should just leave it at that for now and move on to the next chapters in life. They will be full of adventure, fun, more shows, sex and anything else that comes to mind between now and then.

Through the ladies and my flying, I've become aware of a friend in Willits that I may have to visit, or have come visit here. They have quite a brood of their own and some new neighbors that add to the fun. I understand they play music, and I know that Tree and Eloise are very musically inclined so we'll just have to see where that goes. We have spent many an evening listening to El and Tree play music.

Megan enjoys music, but doesn't seem to have any interest in seriously playing an instrument though she plays piano very well. I guess we'll see where that goes as well.

So, where does that leave me?

Screening, dying and watching two beautiful women work their way through education knowing the third is excelling as well. She did decide on EE, but now she's working on Mechanical as well, so I guess we'll see where it all goes eventually.

Stay tuned, there's more to come from Craft Faire Love!

pj